

Into Something Good: The Extraordinary Story of Frank Walters Clark

Frank Walters Clark was born into poverty in rural Alabama in 1923. His father was a sharecropper, and his mother worked as a maid. Frank had to start working at a young age to help support his family. He picked cotton, chopped wood, and did odd jobs around the town. Despite his difficult circumstances, Frank dreamed of a better life for himself and his family.

In 1942, Frank was drafted into the Army and served in World War II. He saw combat in the Pacific theater and was awarded the Bronze Star for his bravery. After the war, Frank returned home and used his GI Bill benefits to attend college. He graduated from Alabama State University with a degree in business. In 1954, Frank moved to Montgomery, Alabama, and started his own business. He started out with a small loan of $500 and a dream. Over the next few years, Frank's business grew and prospered. He became a successful businessman and philanthropist.

Frank Walters Clark was a man of great character and determination. He never gave up on his dreams, even when things were tough. He was a role model for his family, his community, and for all who knew him. Frank's story is an inspiration to us all. It shows us that anything is possible if we set our minds to it.
