

Man, Time, and the Deadliest Hurricane in History: The Great Galveston Hurricane of 1900

In the annals of American history, the Great Galveston Hurricane of 1900 stands as a cataclysmic event that forever etched its mark on the nation's memory. With winds gusting up to 145 miles per hour and a storm surge that reached unprecedented heights, the hurricane ravaged the coastal city of Galveston, Texas, leaving a trail of destruction and loss that shocked the world.

Amidst the chaos and devastation, one man's story of survival emerged as a beacon of hope. Isaac Cline, a young African American man, found himself trapped in the raging waters as the hurricane battered the city. Defying all odds, he clung to a piece of debris for hours, fighting against the relentless force of the storm.
